

The Clever Tortoise – A Moral Story about Patience and Intelligence

A hare and a tortoise lived in a forest.
The hare often boasted about how fast he could run.

The Clever Tortoise: A Moral Story about Patience and Intelligence

Scene 2

One hot day, a lion spotted the tortoise and wanted to eat him.

The hare soon started to feel confident, leaving the tortoise far behind as he raced along. The tortoise, however, kept moving steadily, step by step.

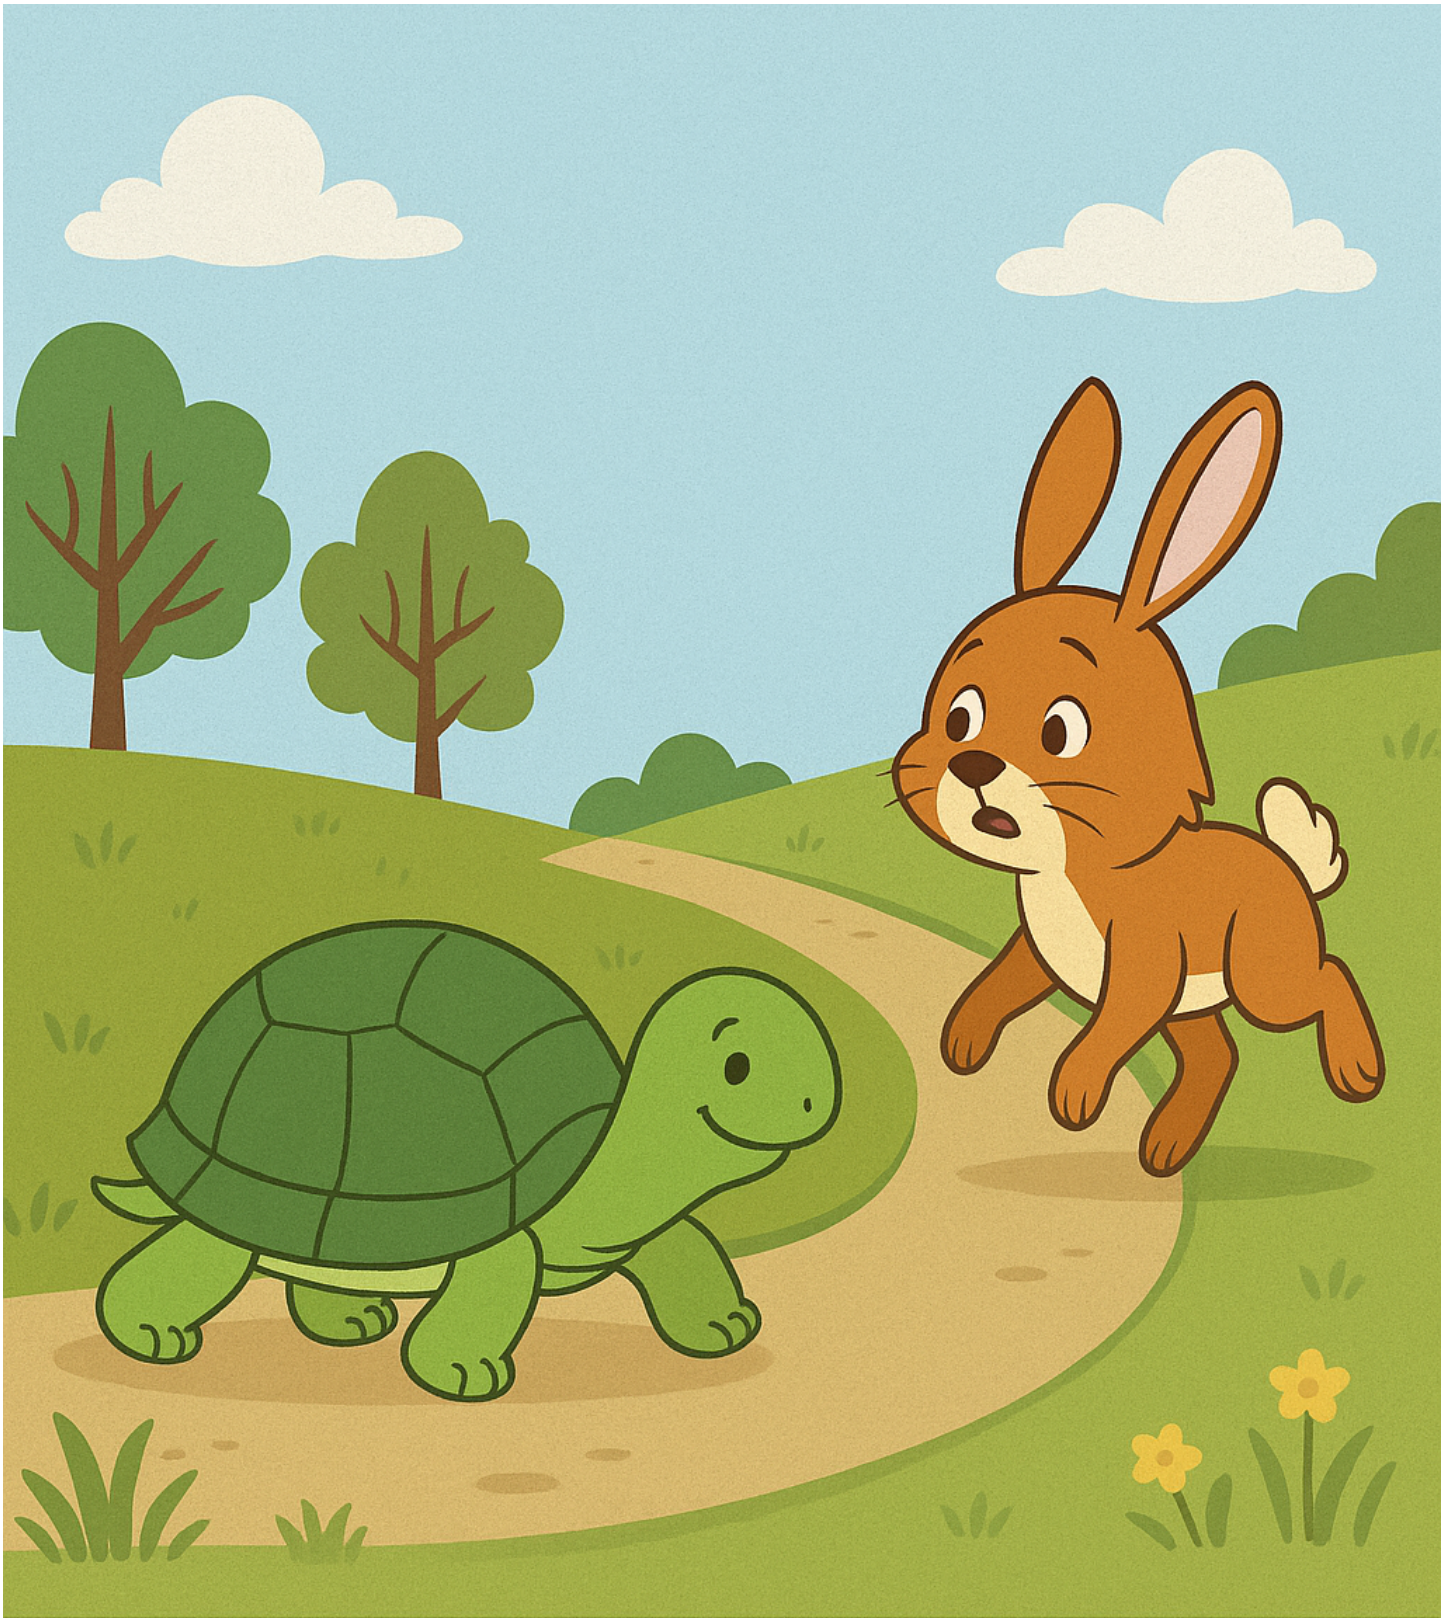

The tortoise refused. "No, I might fall. I'll just walk slowly instead." he replied calmly. The hare laughed, thinking that he would easily win race.

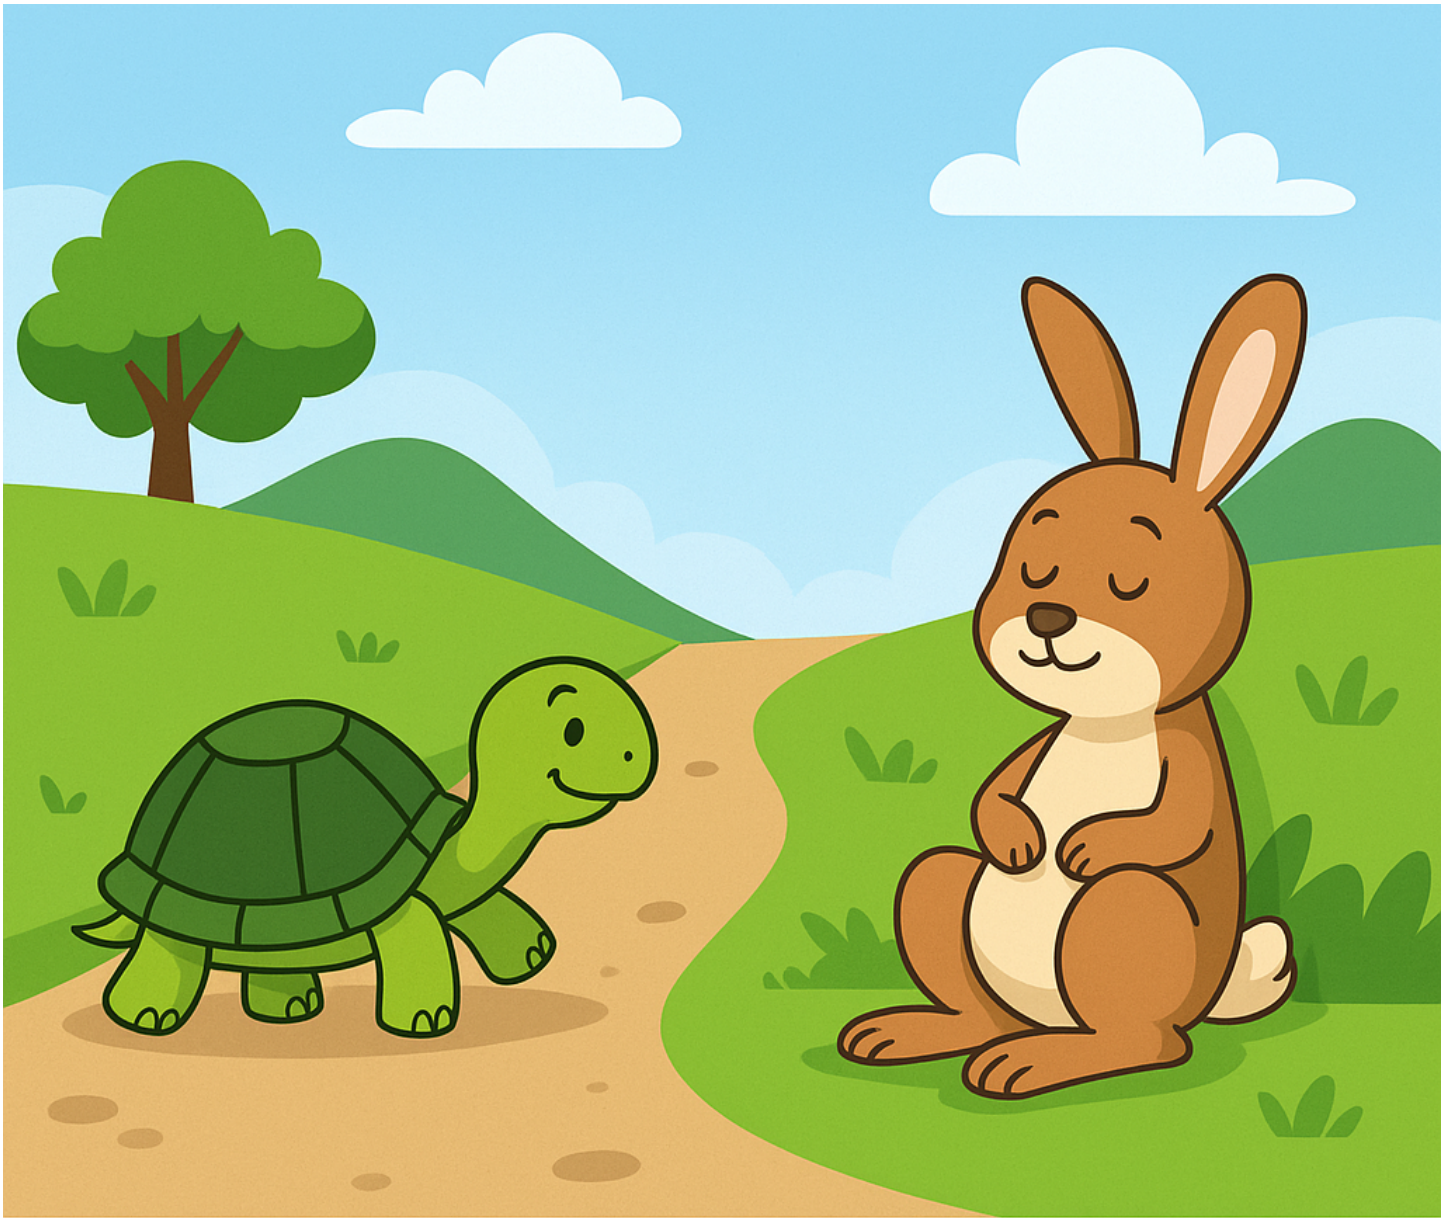

The Clever Tortoise - A Moral Story about Patience and Intelligence

A tortoise challenged a hare to a race. The hare, overconfident, skipped along while the tortoise plodded steadily.

Although the hare was fast, the tortoise continued at a steady pace.

The tortoise tricked the hare into taking a nap

The tortoise eventually crossed the finish line, while the hare watched in disbelief.

The hare tried to run but the tortoise was already close to the finish line. He couldn't catch up.

And as the hare continued to sleep, the tortoise steadily made his way forward. Finally, he reached the finish line and won the race.

Using his intelligence,
the tortoise crossed the river.

The hare ran as fast as he could, while the tortoise moved steadily along.

Finally, the tortoise crossed the finish line, while the hare was still sleeping. He had won the race!

Patience and intelligence can win over speed and arrogance.
